Beware! Beware! Beware

Contributions from Whiteout Press

On July 7, 2013 the Supreme Court struck down a lower court ruling and award for the victim of a pharmaceutical drug's adverse reaction. From now on, 80% of all drugs are exempt from legal liability and the drug companies cannot be sued for fraud, mislabeling, side effects, and accidental death! The court ruled that the FDA has ultimate authority over all pharmaceuticals in the United States. So, if the FDA says the drug is safe, it takes precedence over actual facts, real victims, and any and all adverse reactions! This flies in the face of common sense and justice. It leaves 240 million Americans unprotected from the deadly and torturous side effects of pharmaceutical drugs. And, there's no way to sue the FDA for being wrong and costing unsuspecting Americans their lives. Remember, the number one cause of preventable or accidental death in the United States is pharmaceutical drugs.

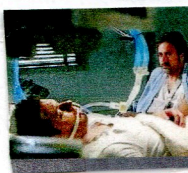

Following the Supreme Court's ruling, Drug Manufacturers and Wall Street investors are celebrating. Drug company profits could skyrocket and these companies no longer have to worry about safety or side effects as they are exempt from the multimillion dollar settlements once awarded to victims of their drugs. This decision provides a disincentive for drugmakers to monitor the safety of their products or to have the surveillance system in place to detect adverse events that pose a threat to patients.

This follows a ruling several years ago where the manufacturers of vaccines could no longer be held liable for the reactions many children have suffered as a result of the vaccine. The spectrum of reactions include everything from autism to death. At this point in protecting the manufacturers of vaccines the United States government had set up a "fund" for these damaged children which the taxpayers now pay for. The unfortunate reality is that this fund is virtually bankrupt from the amount of claims that have been made for these children.

Just another example of poor judgment and misplaced trust in government and its agencies. With all the news reports of drug companies giving FDA representatives kickbacks or where these representatives have actually been on the Drug Company's payroll, this serious conflict of interest cannot be overlooked. Once enacted, it will take a long time to have it reversed.

So what do you do? You have to keep yourself healthy and fit in order to avoid prescription medications. You have to provide yourself with proper nutrition and exercise. Since the spine is the circuitry of the body and your lifeline with all the nerves going to internal organs, keep this free of interference by getting your regular adjustments. Realize more than ever now it's not just about pain! The Nutrition Response Testing that we perform here has helped many patients avoid medication while improving their overall health with whole food supplements and homeopathics which are builders and healers.

You can't depend on the government to protect you. It is up to you and you alone. It is your responsibility to care for yourself and your families. The above ruling was pushed through under the cover of darkness and Americans have not been informed. I'm telling you this because no one else will.
