Vaccine Bombshell: Baby Monkeys Developed Autism After Vaccines!

The Greater Good team, go see www.greatergoodmovie.org

This article, originally published on Vanguard on November 3, 2012, refers to research that was presented at a conference last spring. While this may seem like old news, did you ever hear about it? Did you ever hear that a team of scientists gave baby monkeys the human baby vaccine schedule and the monkeys developed the symptoms of autism? What should have been front page news everywhere did not get any mention in the corporate media. And the Federal agencies responsible for vaccine safety said nothing. Wow!

While this research was presented at a scientific conference last spring, it is worth noting that it has yet to be published in any medical journal. This is very odd indeed that such critically important research has not been published. The study was conducted at the University of Pittsburgh's Autism Center for Excellence, a center which has received a five-year $15 million grant from the National Institutes of Health (NIH being supported by taxpayer dollars). You would think that such alarming research into the cause of autism would have prompted further inspection. Instead, in September of 2012, when the NIH awarded $100 million in new grant money to various research institutions across the nation, the University of Pittsburgh, where this groundbreaking research was conducted, got none! Go figure. Very smelly.

Questions again arise over the ultimate safety of vaccines which are pumped into our infants, children and grandchildren. Unlike all other drugs, which must at least undergo a basic round of safety testing prior to approval and recommendation, vaccinations and vaccine schedules in particular do not have to be proven safe or effective before hitting the market. (This includes the flu vaccine you may have just gotten.)

SafeMinds, is a public safety group working to expose the truth about vaccines and autism. SafeMinds is calling for a large-scale, unbiased study that looks at autism spectrum medical conditions and the effects of vaccines given as a regimen. SafeMinds states that "the above study demonstrates how the CDC has evaded their responsibility to investigate vaccine safety questions. Vaccine safety oversight should be removed from the CDC and given to an independent agency".

So how does this make you feel? Did you know that the government has also relieved the vaccine manufacturers and those who administer vaccines of any responsibility of serious complications including brain damage and deaths as a result of vaccines. The government now, through your tax dollars as a fund for vaccine damaged individuals. Unfortunately, due to the number of claims this fund is virtually bankrupt. This is another example of large corporations and governmental agencies in a conflict of interest relationship. So what do you do? Dr. Caprile can use test kits to determine the effects of vaccinations in many cases and use complex homeopathy in order to decrease these effects. Another win for Nutrition Response Testing that we do in the office.
